Negro Dead 15 Years Exhibited; Many Here See Marlin Mummy

A negro dead fifteen years was exhibited at the carnival grounds this week by parties from Marlin making a ten cent admission charge.

The negro's name was Andrew McGrew. He looks real and natural and was 46 years old when he died. He was turned over to the Falls County Undertakers at Marlin who are said to have used a fluid for embalming that the world would give millions to know about.

Many people here visited the carnival grounds to see the mummy.

MAY HARD SURFACE RIVER BOTTOM ROAD

EFFORT TO BE MADE TO PREVENT WASH AWAYS IN TRACY RIVER BOTTOM

County Commissioner R. A. Hairston informs The Reporter that he is now having estimates made on the hard surfacing of that portion of the Rockdale-Tracy road which runs thru the San Gabriel river bottom. The strip of road under consideration is more than a mile in length, and is the bugaboo road in Mr. Hairston's precinct, being subject to overflow and frequently washing away.

Mr. Hairston has the opinion of County Engineer Mitchell that the treatment of this road by the inverted penetration process of surfacing will serve to hold the gravel in place and put a stop to the continued washing away of the gravel road bed. Mr. Hairston is soon to begin the work of spreading the new gravel over this road and will probably follow that some time this summer with the asphalt application.

Mr. Hairston will also spread gravel on another stretch of this road, extending from the Kraatz hill to the old Murray cemetery hill. This work will begin at an early date.

Mr. Hairston reports the grading work on the Rockdale-San Gabriel road completed from Brushy Bridge to the Thompson tract. Right-of-way through the Thompson land and on to the river has not yet all been secured, but all obstacles will probably be removed and the work started early in May. A new jury of view will be appointed by the Commissianers Court this week.—Rockdale Reporter.

B. Y. P. U. Meet

The above is a picture of those attending the Milam County North Zone meeting which was held at the Cameron Baptist church on the first Sunday in March 1928.

This organiation was started less than a year ago with four B. Y. P. U's. Since then these four have about doubled in membership and three more splendid Unions have been started.

From the first the attendance has increased and the interest has deepened till now we have one of the best Zone Unions in all the land. Rev. Odell Jameson is the Zone president and is leading in a great way.

Mr. H. P. Black and many other people have helped to make this splendid work a success. The next meeting is to be held with the Branchville Baptist church on the afternoon of the first Sunday in May.

It is said that a large number of people from Cameron will go to Belton to attend the meeting at which the congressman will formally open his campaign for the United States Senate. Mr. Conally is popular with the voters here and a number of the leading politicians here are interested in his race.

LUMBER SLOGAN PRIZE WON BY BONHAM GIRL

R. P. JETER NOTIFIED OF THE AWARDING OF PRIZES BY ASSOCIATION

Royal P. Jeter, local lumberman, has received word from Washington, headquarters of the National Lumber Manufacturers Association that Beatrice Alderson of Bonham, Texas, was awarded $100 as the Texas State winner in the $15,000 National Lumber Slogan Contest. Her slogan was: Mr. Jeter also was informed that "Wood for Satisfaction."

the capital prizes ranging from $5000 to $5000 were awarded as follows:

James E. Noble, Jr., Sanatorium, Miss., "Certified by Centuries of Service," $5000.

Dora avis Farrington, New York City, "Wood: Use It; Nature Renews It," $2000.

Mrs. Maud Burt, Marshalltown, Iowa, "Use It—Nature Renews It," $1000.

Lawrence O. Nichols, Boise, Idaho, "Build Better with Better Lumber," $500.

C. Stanley Garrison, Indianaupolis, Ind., "Wood Answers the Material Question," $500.

Lawrence J. Fuka, Madison, Wis., "There's a Wood for Every Material Problem," $500.

Approximately 400,000 slogans were entered in the widely advertised contest from close to 200,000 individuals. Every State in the Union and every Canadian province was represented. In addition, slogans were received from the outlying possessions of the United States, from England, Scotland, Wales, France, Italy, Switzerland Persia Africa and other foreign lands. The contest is said to have attracted more attention than any similar contest held in recent years.

East contestant was required to submit a fifty-word letter stating why his slogan was a good one. In making the awards, the judges took this statement as well as the slogan, into consideration.

Intense interest in the contest was indicated not only by the large number of slogans received, but also by the painstaking care and effort exerted by numerous contestants in submitting their entries. Many sent handsomely carved pieces of woodwork, miniature houses, attractive panels, plaques and wood-covered brochures, bearing appropriate slogans. Others contributed original verse and eulogies as indicative of the inherent love of the human being for the forest and its products.

As part of the literature in connection with this contest, the association prepared a booklet entitled, "The Story of Wood," describing the economics and romance of the lumber industry. Approximately a half million copies of this booklet were distributed to contestants and others interested in the national wood campaign. It is estimated this pamphlet was one of the season's "best sellers." Besides serving as a guide to contestants, it proved to be a distinct contribution to commercial literature, throwing a new light on one of the Nation's greatest industries.

Jack Horner Comes Back To Scenes Of Early Boyhood Days

Jack Horner was in town the other day visiting the scenes of his boyhood, shaking hands with his playmates of other days, and telling stories of antics in the school room of which only a vigorous boy is capable.

Many now living here will remember Jack Horner. He was in company with Giles Avriett, a class mate when a reporter of this paper met him. He now lives in Marshall and is a traveling salesman. Recently his territory was enlarged and now he is to come to Cameron more often.

It has been 28 years since Mr. Horner was a school boy on the old campus and in talking of the old times recalled with a merry twinkle of the eye many things he did in those days—the days that mean everything now that he has reached the high noon of life and can read many pages from the book of memory. He loves Cameron people, he says, because Cameron people were good to him as a boy.

Mr. Horner was in the air service during the world war and got as far as Hoboken in his trek toward the big thrill but did not get across. From his headquarters in Dallas he goes over a wide area he has known for many years and always will find pleasure in a stay in Cameron.

Court Proceedings

The jury in the case of R. S. Isaacs vs. Cameron Compress returned a verdict on special issues in favor of defendant. The case involved the loss of cotton burned in the fire of the compress in October 1920.

In the case of State vs. Edwin Herd charged by indictment with the burglary of Cheeves Bros.,store last December returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment at two years in the penitentiary. Defendant immediately filed and presented his motion for new trial and upon its denial appealed the case to the Court of Criminal Appeals. Three other cases involving matters growing out of the burglary are pending against defendant. Three companions of the defendant pleaded guilty at a former term of court and two were sent to Gatesville Juvenile Training School on account of being under seventeen ad other to the peitentiary.

This defendant lives in Cleburn and was represented by Marvin B. Simpson of Fort Worth, the leading attorney for Rev. J. Frank Norris in the killing of Chipps in Fort Worth. Mr. Simpson worked at the Santa Fe depot in Cameron in 1909 prior to his entering into the practice of law.

EASTER SERVICES AT METHODIST CHURCH

LARGE NUMBER RECEIVED INTO CHRCH AT MORNING HOUR

Easter is becoming more and more an important day with the Methodist people everywhere. Some form of pre-Easter Evangelism is put on by the majority of Methodist churches. The Cameron church this year put on a "Church Attendance and Personal Evangelism Campaign" beginning some six weeks before Easter and culminating in the reception of new members and specialiy appropriate services on Easter Sunday.

A class composed largely of young people from the Sunday School and which filled the spacious altar was received at the morning hour. It was a great day for the church and these young people.

At the evening hour the choir rendered a program of splendid Easter music. A great many were kept from this fine service by the heavy rains but the big choir was there in full force and fine voice. Those who came were more than repaid for coming through the rain.

Including those who had been received since conference previous to Easter Sunday, fifty-four names have been added to the church roll under the present pastor, twenty-five of them being on profession of faith.

There is still a large number of Methodist people in Cameron who are not identified with the local congregation. They are not only welcome but are urged to place their membership at once.

Al lMethodists are exhorted to regard this Easter time as the date for the beginning of a new era in the life of the local church.

Texas and Texans

By Will H. Mayes

Mohair Industry Increases

From every section of Texas where attention is being paid to the mohair industry, reports are that the yield this spring is larger than heretofore and that the growers are pleased with prices and profits. The goat is no longer the humble and neglected ranch animal, but the pride of the place. In Lampasas county there has been a ten-fold increase in mohair production in the last five years. The shipments this spring are expected to reach ten carloads. San Marcos estimates are that the Hays county production will bring in $150,000, the fall clip having been approximately $100,000. The price ranges from 52 to 65 cents a pound. There is hardly a farm in Texas, unless it be the small fruit or truck farm, on which at least a few goats may not be kept to profit and with little trouble.

Milk Goats Popular

The prejudice that once existed against the use of goat milk has about gone, and as people are learning the healthfulness of the milk and its value as a nourishing food, especially for invalids and young children, many farms and town homes now have a few milk goats. The milk goat is about the cleanest of domestic animals. It is easily and inexpensively kept and it is gentle and docile. Many families throughout the country that reluctantly began the use of goats' milk for some invalid on the recommendation of a physician, have found it so wholesome and nourishing that the milk has been substituted entirely for cows' milk for family use.

Millions of Rats Killed

According to reports compiled by the Texas Experiment Station at College Station, 1,917,004 rats were killed in thirteen counties in Texas from December, 1927 to the close of February 1928. The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that a rat will eat and destroy $2.00 worth of feddstuff every year. These thirteen counties, therefore, will be nearly $4,000,000 better off because of their rat killing campaigns. Texas should and could be cleared of rats in a short time if the other counties of the State would only go about killing them as energetically as have Navarro, Smith, Ellis, Grayson, Fannin, Lamar, Bell, Wood, Denton, Grimes, Red River, Kaufman and Jefferson, the counties that have made their reports. To be most effective every part of the state should assist in the destruction of this pest.

Million Dollar Community

Rowena, which the last census estimated had only 500 inhabitants, but which is surrounded by a fine agricultural section, ginned 8,000 bales of cotton during the season just closed, that crop having an estimated value of $800,000. In addition the produce sold in the town, according to estimates, was 86,000 pounds of butter valued at $26,000; ten cars of eggs, $28,000; 4 cars of cattle $3000; six cars of wheat $15,000. and ten cars of oats $10,000. Ballinger, the county seat, which is close by bought Rowena grown products estimated at $200,000. Many items, like vegetables and fruit, are not included in the estimates of Rowena-grown products. This paragraph explains why Rowena is not complaining of hard times.

Blackberry Picking Time

Blackberry picking has begun in Smith county, where the acreage is larger and the crop better than ever before and stained lips and teeth all over the country will soon be giving testimony to the popularity of this delicious Texas fruit. Lindale and Swan are the leading berry centers of the county, there being 4,000 acres grown in the Lindale community.

Winter Garden Organization

The sectional Chamber of Commerce in the Winter Garden District of Texas is so pleased with the results of its organized efforts that it has decided to continue its operations along the same lines another year. The headquarters will be moved to Asherton, with J. G. Sullivan as president and J. G. Fraser as secretary. Texas truck and fruit growers have learned that the closest and most efficient organization is essential to their success. Some day the farmers and especially the cotton growers, will learn this valuable lseson from the experience gained by those in allied lines.

Frog Shipping Picks Up

The Eastland frog story, so extensively circulated throughout the country has stimulated renewed activity in the frog business. Frogs are frogs now, or rather, horned frogs are horned frogs. Northern and Eastern folks want to know what they look like. Boys are searching woods and fields for them and selling them for shipment. The Lockhart postoffice handled a shipment of six in one day recently, the frogs being consigned to Boston, Mass.

Carrizo Springs Water

At a depth of only 320 feet, Carrizo Springs has "brought in" a water well that produces 650 gallons of water a minute and affords an abundance of pure, cool water to supply the city water works and sewage system now being installed. Carrizo Springs is right in the heart of the shallow-well irrigation district Southwest of San Antonio, the famous Winter Garden area of Texas.

Small City Paving

The small cities of Texas, in proportion to their population, keep fully up with the larger cities in the matter of street paving and other improvements. For instance, Uvalde with a little more than 5,000 population has 14 miles of paved streets, and will soon vote a $100,000 bond issue to be used for paving, sid-ewalks and other improvements. McGregor is soon to asphalt some 24 blocks of streets in the residence districts of the town. These items were noticed in the papers of one day and are but instances of what is going on all over Texas. A town or village is never too small to keep itself in the first class in matters of civic improvements.

Beautifying Contest

The Dilley Civic League has put on a contest of a kind that might well be inaugurated in every place in Texas. The town is divided into four sections by the intersecting highways centering there. These sections will strive to see which can be made the most beautiful, the prizes being rosebushes to be awarded by the Civic Club, which of course will be used to still further beautify the winning section in the contest.

Junction Waterworks

Junction has long been famous for its good water, but has been rather behind in its facilities for distributing the water to the citizens. That is to be overcome by the building of a water system as a result of a bond issue recently voted. Junction has for a long time been a natural health resort for Texans, but since completing a splendid hotel, building a water works and building tourist camps and doing other things for the convenience of tourists, it will become even more popular with travelers.

I ask for and will appreciate your—

Chevrolet Is Ahead of All Production Records In Past

Detroit, Mich., April 7— With March production running fourteen percent ahead of any previous month in history and production and sales organizations operating at a record-shattering pace, the Chevrolet Motor Company for the first quarter of 1928 built a total of 342,184 cars and trucks, W. S. Knudsen, president and general manager, announced here today.

This record output is 70,000 units more than the turnout during the corresponding period last year, and gives substantial backing to the statement made a week ago by Chevrolet executives that the country is in the midst of an unusual era of prosperity that is destined to hold throughout the greater part of the year.

In March Chevrolet built 133,657 cars and trucks. This is 17,000 units better than February 1928, which previously was the largest month's output in the sixteen year existence of the company Mr. Knudsen pointed out.

On top of the new high performance in March, the fourteen domestic Chevrolet factories are building cars as fast as precision methods will permit, with the expectation that April, despite having two less working days than March, will show practically as high a production volume as the month just ended. Mr. Knudsen stated that still higher records are possible when a new assembly plant with a capacity of 350 cars a day, which is shortly to be opened at Atlanta, gets under way to augment the output of the other factories.

An unusual feature of the March output was the fact that more than 113,000 units of the total volume were absorbed by domestic market to assure all dealers of an adequate number for prompt delivery.

The remarkable showing of the company was interpreted here as a sweeping endorsement of the refinements embodied in the Bigger and Better Chevrolet as well as a tribute to the far-seeing policy of Chevrolet officials in arranging their production facilities so that cars might be instantly available to the public.

Al Jolson In Jazz Singer On Vitaphone Playing In Waco

elight, wonder and the third twin o femotion—pathos; about the only way to sum up Al Jolson in "The Jazz Singer," which opened at the Orpheum Monday. One can not put down in cold type the mysteries of a science which pictures a gripping plot, speaks the drama and affords the voice of one of the world's greatest singers. nor can there be put to printed words the heart tug of "Mammy" from the lips of Al Jolson to describe "The su shines east, and the sun shines west, but I know the one that I love best."

Unusual Presentation

Thus it would be futile to so much as try to recount the complete satisfaction of this unusual presentation. By word of mouth the story of what "The Jazz Singer" really is will spread rapidly through Waco today from those who saw it yesterday. Because the production is booked for an indefinite run here—a record booking for this city—perhaps all will enjoy the experience. Suffice to say, however, that commonplace as Vitaphone offerings may become in the near future, the long wait of folks down here for arrival of the perfected instrument, bring with it for opening night that voice of Broadway, was amply rewarded.

Applause and Tears

Before last night at the Orpheum applause was never heard in a Waco moving picture house. Audiences here have never wept before, yet probably not as much as the audience wept last night, but the spontaneous handclapping as if hundreds were pleading for an encore—it was unusual to say the least.

"The Jazz Singer" as a novel is being printed serially in the Waco Times Herald; therefore you recall the story. It is a plot which revolves about a Jewish family, head of which is a patriarch, a cantor. Then there is the son—Al Jolson as Jack Robinowsky, or Jack Robin—who is thrown out of his fathers house because he aspires to be a jazz singer. His near success and the call of his father from a death bed that he return as Cantor on the Day of Atonement and sing Sol Nidre for the choir. An enticing interweaving of intolerance and mother love and father love. It depicts the traditions of the Jewish race; it contrasts the urge for freedom of the modern age. All that and more is "The Jazz Singer."

Wonders of the Vitaphone

It is said that the Vitaphone as yet has not been perfected. If there is something better in store for us than the manner in which Al Jolson's voice was rendered last night then the ultimate must be wonderful. Prepare to laugh at "Dirty Hands, Dirty Face" prepare to cry at "Mother" and "Mammy." It is a tremendous thing. Al Jolson, May McAvoy, Cantor Rosenblatt and Warner Claud include the cast. Other numbers on the bill are the "Poet and Peasant" overture with Vitaphone orchestra and a talking announcement by Conrad Nagel, in which he describes "Tenderloin," another Vitaphone picture soon to be exhibited.—F. B.

Saturday Tea

Mrs. T. S. Henderson and daughters entertained Saturday with a tea at her home from four to six o'clock, announcing the marriage of her youngest daughter Miss Agnes to Mr. Ernest Douglas Beard of Calvert. Especially attractive were the rooms of the home for this occasion. A profusion of spring flowers of various colors gave floral touches everywhere.

Guests were extended greetings on entering by Miss Winnie Henderson. Mrs. Hamilton Bonnett, a daughter, who is a guest in the home, then led the way through the library to the parlor. On the grand piano, amid a bower of bridal wreath and greenery stood a miniature bridal party and minister. An invitation lay open and each guest stopped to read the anouncement of the wedding that will take place at the home on April 26, at 3:30 o'clock. In the receiving line stood Misses Mary Lake Henderson, Mrs. T. S. Henderson Jr., and her mother, Mrs. Stone of Mt. Clement, Michigan. Those assisting in dispensing hospitality in the parlors and library were Mesdames S. M. Burns, Ben Atkinson, Tom Denson and Wm. Henderson. Mrs. C. W. Bradbury and Miss Helen Flinn furnished music during the afternoon.

In the dining room the following young ladies served cream and cake to the guests: Misses Helen, Mary Francis and Pauline Green, Velda Walker and also Mrs. Jas. Coleman.

Out of town guests were Mrs. Beard of Calvert, mother of Mr. Ernest Beard; and four aunts of Mr. Beard; Mrs. Jones, Calvert; Mrs. McClendon of Waco; Mrs. Rice, Fort Worth and Mrs. McCrorey of Calvert. Miss Jean Adams of Buckholts was also an out of town guest.

Class Party

On last Friday evening, the members of the Fidelis Class of the Baptist church, entertained the young men of the Berean Class with a party on the church lawn. Miss Mary Lake Henderson, teacher of the Fidelis Class was in charge of the games and a merry two hours was spent in fun. Refreshments of lemonade and cookies were served to the merry group.

Mr. S. E. Brogdon was called to Winsboro last Friday to be at the bedside of his mother who was ill, having suffered a stroke of apoplexy.

GRAB IT—HOLD IT

A great many of our readers know Dick, only that is not his real name. He is a bright-eyed youngster who plays hard every day.

A few days ago we watched him and his playmates having a game of baseball. The score at the time we stopped to look is an unimportant detail. Dick's eyes were never off the rapidly moving sphere. Suddenly a hard and fast fly was batted to his field. Out in this field was a great puddle of muddy water, left by a recent rain, and the ball went straight for that puddle. And Dick went straight for the ball. Perhaps he saw the puddle—at least he knew it was there—but his eyes were on the ball, and—splash he went flat in the dirty hole. But the hand that had nailed the fly never touched the ground. He waded out, covered with mud and soaked to the hide two facts of which he seemed unaware, because he had caught the fly—and had held it.

Some boys would have started for the ball and stopped at the edge of the puddle. Some others would have lost it when they fell, Dick held on.

That particular ball game soon will be a forgotten affair, or at the best only a memory. But we can picture Dick when he gets into the real game of life, as being classed among star players. He will not look for the little unpleasant things but will hurl himself at the ball and hold on for dear life. He may fail in the mud—he may even have to be fished out—but when he comes to the top, in his hand you will see the ball.

One great affliction of so many of us is the tendency to first look for the puddle instead of the ball. And by the time we have figured out every little chance against a successful catch the ball is gone.

When the ball of life is batted into your field, grab it.

Don't fumble it—hold it.

PROVINCE OF A NEWSPAPER

It would be comical, were it not somewhat pathetic, the way newspaper offices are besieged every day by their frinds, urging them to 'roast' this and that; to 'see to it' that this and that is corrected; to have this and that done in the city or county; to start this and that kind of movement to correct evils in the state government. These friends actually appar to believe that it is the newspaper's business to handle all these affairs.

But a self?respecting newspaper, though ready and willing to carry all reasonable responsibility, must remind its readers that they—the people—are the authority upon whom rests the responsibility for the present state of affairs local, state and national.

A self-respecting newspaper tries to report the news of what actually happens, not what it might wish had happened. The relation of a self-respecting newspaper to the general public is not always understood. It is the duty of a newspaper to be in a position to support any good act and criticize any bad act of public policy.

This relationship cannot exist where favors are asked and granted. Honesty is the only policy for a newspaper.

If objectors don't like the way things are going, they should qualify as voters and then raise cain about it.

MARBLES AND SPRING

There is a time for all things, and this happens to be the time for marbles.

One of the positive signs of spring is the advent of the marble season. No sooner does the warm spring sun melt late winter's snow from pavements and sidewalks than there appear on them mystic chalk marks around which squat boys like Indians about a camp fire.

"Knuckle down," "Trade you two shooters for a glassy," and "Your shoot" now become the language of youth, and the tell-tale signs of the season are bulging pockets, cardboard boxes filled with something that rattles suspiciously and having a hole in the top through which a marble might be dropped, and the clatter and roll of marbles on schoolroom floors as sorely strained pants' pockets let go.

In his games is the boy "the father of the man." The marbles of youth prepare the way for the tennis, billiards, golf and other sports and pastimes of maturity. Marbles is the kindergarden of good sportsmanship.

One wonders if there is a normal boy today who does not feel the irresistible urge to paly marbles or a normal man who did not as a boy "shoot" the little spheres of colored glass and clay. So inseparable is the boy from the marble one sometimes thinks to deprive the boy of his marbles would work an irreparable loss.

Party Loyalty For Texas Democrats Is Stressed In Call

JOSEPH W. BAILEY

Another fighting unit within the Democratic party of Texas, the third to take the field to date, will be organized Monday at the Baker Hotel under a State-wide call issued by Democratic leaders, including former Senator Joseph Weldon Bailey, who insists that only Democrats taking the State committee's pledge of loyalty shall participate in precinct and county conventions of May 5 and 8.

This organization, Senator Bailey said Monday, will be in accord with the resolutions adopted by Democrats of Texas Saturday except that instead of appealing to Democrats to stand by the State committee's pledge the new unit will fight to enforce the pledge.

The principal purpose of the new force, when organized, will be to demand that the State committee's resolution embracing the party loyalty pledge be offered for adoption by the chairman of every precinct convention. If the chairman refuses to offer the resolution, then it will be offered from the floor of precinct conventions. If it is voted down, the Democrats, Senator Bailey said, will walk out and hold a convention of their own for the selection of delegates to the county conventions who will agree to the State committee's instructions in regard to the pledge. This action would send two sets of delegates to the county conventions and bitter fight over seating the delegates would ensue.

Call for Meeting

The call issued for the meeting reads:

"Without reference to their presidential preferences and without reference to their attitude on the prohibition question, all Democrats who believe that only those who honestly intend to support our nominees should participate inmaking our nominations are invited to attend a meeting to be held at the Baker Hotel in Dallas, Texas, at 10 a. m. Monday April 16."

The call has been signed by prominent Democratic leaders in Tarrant, Collin, Caldwell, Eastland, Erath, Milam, Wise, Johnson, Comache, Palo Pinto, Jones, Bell, Throckmorton, Stephens, Taylor, Ward, Young and Upser counties.

"The Democrats who are making this call prepared it ten days ago, but I advised against issuing it until after the meeting called by Governor Moody's friends for last Saturday, and had intended if that meeting placed itself firmly behind the State executive committee to advise against calling this meeting," said Senator Bailey. "I had hoped that that meeting would adopt resolutions approving the action of the executive committee and demanding that its resolutions should be complied with. Instead of doing that, however, it made no mention of what the State executive committee had done, and contented itself with merely appealing to the disaffected.

"To my way of thinking that means nothing.

"Every voter has the right to vote as he or she pleases; but voters who reserve the right to vote independently of our party should leave our party to make its nominations independently of them, and all who attend our conventions should be compelled to agree that they will support the nominees or be excluded.

"I have no right to speak for the meeting to be held Monday, but I hope that it will demand that if the chairman of any precinct convention refuses or fails to present the resolution as directed by the State committee, it shall be presented from the floor, and recommend that if voted down the proponents of it will retire from the convention and organize a meeting to be conducted in strict accordance with the recommendations of the State committee."

Easter Egg Hunts

The children of the Primary Department of the Baptist church enjoyed an Easter egg hunt on the lawn of the church last Friday afternoon from four to six o'clock. After the little folks had searched in the grass for the hidden eggs they were served Eskimo pies.

The little folks of the Primary Department and Cradle Roll of the church met at the home of Mrs. White and mothers of several of the children carried all of them to the home of Mrs. J. L. Slaughter where they enjoyed an Easter egg hunt. Eskimo pies and candy Easter eggs were given each one. Miss Edna Sprinkle is superintendent of the Beginners Department and very ably assisted in directing the children during the afternoon. Quite a large number of mothers were present.

Baptist W. M. S.

The ladies of the Baptist church met in the following homes: Circle one met with Mrs. John Brock with eight present. Mrs. John Denson led the Bible lesson. Circle two met with Mrs. George A. Thomas with seven present. Mrs. S. M. Burns Jr., led an interesting lesson from the Baptist Standard. Circle four did not meet. All ladies of the church are requested to send eggs to the church next Monday afternoon at four o'clock to be packed and sent to Buckner Orphan's Home. There will be an unlimited supply of crates available to send as many eggs as can be secured. This is a worthy cause and all are urged to co-operate. Next Monday the ladies will meet at the church for mission study.

Delphian Meeting

The Delphian Chapter held the second meeting last Friday in the library of the Ada Henderson building with the president, Mrs. R. L. Batte presiding. Miss Winnie Henderson was leader for the afternoon.

The subject was "Egypt of Bible Times." General theme was the Egeptian civilization as modified by time and contact with Asia. Mrs. Joe Denson gave a resume of the last program. The following program was given: "The Middle Kingdom," Mrs. Hubert Atkinson. "The Labyrinth," Mrs. Floris Criswell. "Life in the Middle Kingdom," Mrs. R. L. Batte. "The Hykoos," Mrs. T. A. Fisher. "Thutmose I," Mrs. E. A. Flinn. "Hatshepsut, Egytp's Great Queen," Mrs. F. S. Lesovsky. "Review of the Son of the Syramore," Mrs. A. C. Freeman. Batte. After the program all entered into a general discussion of the lesson.

Methodist Church

Our Easter Services were great. A large number were received into the membership of the church. It was stated by some that it looked like the close of a big protracted meeting.

The musical service at night was simply fine. The faithfulness of the choir was remarkable. The membership of the church should have been more loyal although it was storming weather. You will next time won't you.

Next Sunday morning the pastor will preach on "The Resurrection Body." Easter day was so full of the reception of members and Easter music that there was not much time for preaching, such preaching as the resurrection justifies.

There will be no preaching service at 7:30. The pastor and congregation will compliment the Presbyterian people in their new church home by paying them a visit at that time.

We want a bigger Sunday school next Sunday. Let every man and woman and boy and girl come at 9:45.

The Leagues invite all young people to meet with them at 6:30.

Rev. George E. Stewart Baptist pastor of San Antonio, will preach at the Rockdale Baptist church at the morning and night services Sunday.

"Dutch Windmills"

"Windmills of Holland," a musical comedy drama, was presented at the Yoe High school auditorium Friday evening at eight o'clock, and was attended by an appreciative audience. Scenery and costumes typically those of Holland gave charming tone for the music, laughs and acting for the drama.

Mynhur Hertogenbosch rendered the song hit of the program with "Vot Is It," evoking much merriment from the audience. The Wooden Shoe Dance and special acts featured between scenes also added to the success of the evening of good entertainment.

Monroe Caffey

Monroe Caffey died at his home in the Salty community Thursday in his 81st year. Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Spradley on Friday when interment was made in the Salty cemetery. Acting as pallbearers were six nephews of the deceased.

Mr. Caffey was born in Montgomery County, Alabama, but came to Milam county many years ago. He was a member of a large family and held in high esteem among his many friends. Deceased was survived by his wife, two sons and four daughters.

Stimulus says:
Blessings on thee, little dame,
Bareback girl with knees the same;
With thy rolled down silken hose,
And thy short transparent clothes;
With thy red lips reddened more
Smeared with lipstick from the store,
With thy make-up on thy face,
And thy bobbed hair's jaunty grace;
From my heart I give thee joy,
Glad that I was born a boy.

Mrs. J. E. Howard visited relatives in Caldwell Friday and Saturday and was accompanied home by her mother, Mrs. Porter.

Posey Bakery Damaged By Fire Friday Night

Fire damaged the Posey Model Bakery here Friday night to the extent of about $1500 it was estimated by Jake L. Posey Saturday morning.

The origin of the fire is not determined but is thought to have originated near the center of the building where a petition crossed the space. A large shipment of flour just unloaded from the mills was destroyed by water from the hose.

Mr. Posey says the loss is partially covered by insurance. The many friends of Jake will sympathize with him in the loss he has sustained.

Class 'A' Honors Won By Rockdale

Final results in the essay contests at the recent Milam County Interscholastic League Meet were received Monday, and the postponed contests in tennis were played last Friday and Saturday. The results give Rockdale a margin of 43 1-2 points over Cameron for Class A honors, and the silver cup comes to the local school. Rockdale and Cameron are the only two class A schools in the county.

Rockdale's total points for the Meet were 217, as against Cameron's 173 1-2. In the various literary events, including essay, Rockdale scored 132, Cameron 79 1-2. In the track and field events, including the delayed tennis matches, Rockdale scored 85, Cameron 94. The local school defeated Yoe High in literary events by 52 1-2 points. Yoe High led in field and track events by 9 points, giving Rockdale a net margin of 43 1-2 points and the silver cup for Class A championship.

The essay contest papers were sent to Baylor University for grading, Rockdale winning in both high school and grammar school essays. Miss May Guthrie represented the high school and Miss Gladys Matson the grammar school. These two contests carried a total of 30 points.

Class B and Rural

Thorndale won the class B honors and was awarded the cup. In the delayed essay contest Thorndale won by 15 points, while the Branchville school won the rural essay contest, giving that school 15 additional points.

Bethlehem school won the rural school championship and was awarded the cup offered to the winner in that class. Bethlehem made a splendid showing in all literary events, winning five first places, making the most points in arithmetic and having two 100 per cent speling papers.—Rockdale Reporter.

ARTICLE ELEVEN

A DECLARATION OF INTERDEPENDENCE

WAS the year 1926 the turning point in the story of American Cotton? This is a question which only the future can answer but to this future it now is appropriate to turn our thoughts.

America is peculiarly the land of the forward look. Travellers notice a pronounced difference in the prevailing spirit between the two sides of the Atlantic. Europe lives in the shadow of its mighty past. It remembers. America constantly discards the past in order to look ahead. It anticipates, expects and plans.

Coming down from the general to the particular, it can hardly be doubted that cotton, that great American resource, is related to the future destiny of the nation even more importantly than to its past. Our hasty and inadequate glimpse at the economics of this tremendous field would be almost meaningless without some noting of the tendencies now at work and the possibilities of accomplishment.

It is obvious that the cotton industry is no longer to be regarded as a loose and irresponsible grouping of business relationships, with each factor gambling on a future that it cannot control. The cotton industry is an entity. With the American Cotton Growers Exchange beginning effectively to link up growers and spinners and the Cotton Textile Institute working for a wholly unified industry, rapid progress seems assured.

Why did the bumper crop of 1926 have such a disastrous effect upon prices? Largely because the industry as a whole was not organized for such a contingency. Ninety per cent of the growers were a crowd of individuals, not an army of production, and they fell into a panic induced by their lack or organization, their urgent necessities and the shock of unexpected conditions. Upon this incident, Col. Henry G. Hester, who is perhaps the world's leading authority on cotton conditions, commented, at the time, as follows:—

> "Calm consideration will show to the men of the South that their fears are without foundation. Whenever the world is brought to believe that we will not let it have our cotton for less than fifteen cents a pound, it will willingly and eagerly pay the price. Just now, I believe, the world is willing to take more of our cotton than we can give it at fifteen cents a pound and over, but it will gladly take it at less if we are insane enough to let it have it."

Colonel Hester's figure of fifteen cents is, of course, a relative and not a fixed or sacred standard of value. If an ample supply could be produced and sold at a profit for twelve cents a pound, or even less, everyone, including the producer, would be better off.

How real is the world's demand for an adequate supply of cotton was vividly revealed ten months later. Early in August, 1927, when the Government announced its first estimate of the coming American crop as less than 13,500,000 bales, clamorous buyers bid up the price by $15 a bale in two days.

There is unmistakable evidence of the dawn of a new consciousness from field to factory

The future expansion of the American cotton industry under unified effort may well surpass its present state in even greater proportion than it exceeded the early expectations of Hamilton.

In the same report in which he advocated the encouragement of manufactures, Hamilton pointed out the unity of interest between agriculture and manufacture. With almost prophetic vision he stated the fact which is only now beginning to be realized in cotton culture and fabrication:—

> "This idea of an opposition between these two interests (agriculture and manufacturing) is the common error of the early periods of every country; but experience gradually disperses it."

After 137 years, the "common error" is beginning to be dissipated in the country to which Hamilton addressed his advice.

There are, then, substantial reasons for optimism in regard to an enormous industry whose welfare as we have tried to show, is a matter of personal concern to the entire population of the land. When the irresponsible tyranny of haphazard conditions running wild shall be succeeded by the intelligent democracy of voluntary cooperation on a comprehensive scale, then may we expect to see a degree of stability, efficiency and well distributed prosperity that will insure the indefinite continuance of America's cotton supremacy. Such conditions may be years, even decades, in coming to pass, but at least and at last they seem to be foreshadowed. There is unmistakable evidence of the dawn of a new consciousness from field to factory, for the former subjects of King Cotton have proclaimed a Declaration—not of Independence, but of Interdependence.

He Served His Country Better Than Himself

JAMES MONROE, fifth President, born April 28, 1758, whose administration has been called the "era of good feeling." So popular was he that he was reelected by all but one of the electoral votes, and this one, it is said, was cast only that Washington might have the unshared honor of being unanimously elected President of the United States.

Unfortunately, however, while Monroe served his country so well, he neglected providing for his own future. In his later years he experienced such financial embarrassment that he was compelled to ask Congress to reimburse him for expenses incurred in the public service.

The anniversary of his birth brings us a two-fold message—patriotism and personal financial provision for future needs. This provision can be made through a growing account with this institution, where deposits are securely protected and earn a profit.

CRACKLINGS

(It's just a gift some men never learn) I was standing in a drug store the other day when a lady, buying a loose leaf scrap book, protested when asked $1.00 for it. "Yess ma'am," said the slick haired young clerk, "That's the very lowest price we can possibly sell it for." "How can Brown sell these exact books for 80c?" "I can't say, ma'am, perhaps Mr. Brown has taken a fancy to you. He is a widower and you are very beautiful you know and—" "Yess ma'am, one dollar, thank you, come in again."

I noticed my friend Mark Reardon acted all put out and irritated last night when he came in the drug store. "Why all the peeve Mark?" I asked. "I've a real reason, believe me. I showed that flapper Gertrude one of my boyhood pictures with my father holding me on his knee and the little rip said, 'Who is the ventriloquist?,"

I read one the other day you might enjoy from Forbes, about Bill who lisped very badly and was explaining to some fellows at the first poker game he had been able to get to since the event, how he had managed to marry such a charming lady as Mrs. Bill: "Well, fellers it was thith way. I had been going to thee her thum time and didn't theem to be making wery much speed and I made up my mind to thay sumthin or busth my suthpenders in tryin. Tho one night I went over to her houth and thet down by her and she began to tell me how much property her father had, how many sheep and cows and hogs and all such and I jist thet still and listened. Finally I thed, Miss Lizzie I aint as rich as your pap, but I have got six thows and pigs over home. Then she fell on my chest and I knowed she was mine. The fact is she thought I thed six thousand pigs and I simply thed six thows (sows) and pigs.

Some time ago, a well known magazine published an illustration which featured a glass of beer. Promptly, the publisher received a letter from the Prohibition Bureau calling his attention to the fact that section 17 of the law had been violated, as any picture which tended to encourage violation of the Prohibition laws were contrary to the spirit, if not to the actual letter of the law, he was requested to modify his editorial policy accordingly, which prompts me to wonder what law in spirit, some of the anatomy pictures that grace our movie and other up town magazines, break. They do other things beside driving young men into the navy and old men to goat hospitals. At least one surely could say these pictures are "provocative" and delicately disarming, suggesting the smooth and silken veiling of the emotions. But who wants them removed—not I.

It seems Henry has made a lady out of Lizzie after all.

As I was trying to find the flap jack from under the big piece of butter the restaurant man gave me at breakfast the other morning, I noted a sign over his cash register: "Please don't ask us to cash checks, even if they are good."

It seems bootleggers have more trial than tribulations.

I was reading some statistics which stated that only one out of every 3 adult people don't like the taste of milk, which proved to me that it might be well for some of these chewing gum and cigarette manufacturers to consult the lowly cow regarding the secret of the selection of flavors that "satisfy and last."

A few years back a woman's vanity wardrobe was just a powder rag. Today she toats a small, round trunk to carry her "Put On," and every druggist carried in well lighted show cases with "School Girl Complexions" and "Skins you love to touch" made to order and guaranteed to Sheba we defenseless men.

The rich get richer and the poor get children.

The Jayhawk tweets, sometimes what is called courage is downright foolishness.

I've come to the conclusion lots of us are full of that brotherly love, but just the same the other fellow's troubles have to touch us kind of close before we begin to lose sleep over it.

I'm often more tired when I get home Saturday night from town then after all day at the plow. I got it figured out I wouldn't make a very good town sport.

I sometimes have to boss and manage fifty men on our nursery, but I'll be darned if that isn't easier than managing two stenos and the wife.

There's a heap of folks that miss the best in life by taking themselves too seriously.

I've been noticing lately the woman sensibly dressed only gets the once over, once.

THE PARENTS' LABORATORY

By Mrs. M. M. Hopkins

Children, for the first time in the history of man, are being given the practical and scientific study they deserve. In the past they were considered more or less as small containers to be filled with "thou shalts" and 'thou shalt nots," together with farmal education in doses, considered proper at that time. But it has begun to dawn upon adult child trainers that children grow from inside outward, and they are beginning, respectfully and with careful hands, to investigate the laws of this development. Physical laws in general are tolerably well known, but the mental and spiritual laws, while somewhat comprehended in outline have many, many details to be discovered and applied.

Pre-kindergarten schools are being founded to study the mere baby as he is allowed to play naturally with his fellow toddlers. The older children, too, have their schools and their clinics where general trends and also idiosyncrasis are noted and put into records. These datas are kept and put into books. Many of them are interesting. All are informative to the inquiring mind. But the great majority of parents do not read them because they are more or less technical, not always accessible and in many cases, the very fact that they exist is not known. Hence these short stories are being written. They deal with the strivings of earnest sincere parents to understand their children, to give them the soil, the sunshine, the air, and the food they need for their three-fold growth of body, mind and heart. Some of the incidents relate mistakes of ignorance, inexperience careless parents, others the solution of problems as workers and fathers with high goals for their children. All are actual happenings in actual homes of real people. People who are wise, foolish, kind, inconsiderate, understanding, dull in fact, human beings.

These stories are equally applicable in the homes of the rich or poor the educated or less learned for they are concrete examples of the priciples of psychology as found to apply too normal children. Put constructive psychology in story form and it will reach more people and do more good.

The parents who really care have the opportunity, most close by, of being scientists at first hand. They have a laboratory in their very midst, the greatest laboratory and the most truthful in the land—the laboratory of their own homes. If they are careful and watch thoughtfully each development therein, gain help from every outside source they can, weigh it and apply it, the products of that home ought to be a matter of pride and comfort to them. If they learn the ways by which children's minds and emotions are stimulated to the best, if they learn the reactions each child feels to certain sets of circumstances and words, and then see that he is surrounded with the ones that help him most, those children will rise up and call their parents blessed. If they can learn the ways to teach him to meet disappointment and despair and overcome them, to see his faults and correct them, to be honest with himself and others, and learn and practice self control, what a work they have helped accomplish. How many things the child must learn in order to be a well balanced human being when the time comes for him to take the burdens of his parents upon his own shoulders. These attributes grow from within but many must be stimulated from without.

Parents can train themselves, and many do, to observe, by experience, but what a blessing if more of them had some preliminary learning with which to start directing the habits of the unfortunate first born child. They must be clear-eyed, quick-witted, sympathetic, firm at the right time, lenient at others, observant always, to see the small shifts that must be made in even the best plan, in order to fit the individual child and the special need. Sincere parents are eager to heed and hear what other parents have learned, for sometimes the simplest suggestion may solve for them a hard problem. Parenthood is a serious and sacred responsibility, to be met with all the forces of the intellect as well as with the deep-seeing eye of love. But it has its compensations. There is more tragedy, comedy, pathos, melodrama and adventure in the day by day rearing of a family than in all the books we ever read.

Etudy and children, help them, train them, enjoy them, and the reward is most abundant.

A wonderful watch—One of the most wonderful watches in the world is that owned and made by Major Dopping-Hepenstal of the Royal Engineers. It is comparatively a small watch not much bigger than an ordinary lever, but it performs a variety of services in addition to telling the time. It rings an alarm bell in the morning to wake his owner, and finally pours the boiling water into a small teapot. WHAT WE THINK

By FRANK DIXON

Since science has proven with animals that sunshine and light fatten and that darkness causes them to grow thin, reducing becomes simple—move into the basement.

The only folks that profit through advice are lawyers an ddoctors.

Some scientst of Columbia worked for years to prove that brunettes are more "emotionally responsive" than blondes. Most of us always knew that. Anyway why all the wasted time. Gentlemen prefer whichever kind they prefer, and that's that. Some like'em emotional and some don't.

The problem in the country is to make two blades of grass grow where one grew before and the problem in the city is to park two cars where there is only room for one.

Recently a man came to town to visit his brother. "What barber shop do you patronize?" he asked upon his arrival. The brother told him, saying, the man on the second chair is the best barber in the shop, but you will have to write out what you want done as he is deaf and dumb." The brother went into the shop, wrote out instructions, handed it to the barber and climbed into the chair. When the work was about half through, some man poked his head in the door and asked the barber to go somewhere with him. "I will," replied the barber, ':just as soon as I finish work on this dummy."—Chas. Sessions in Topeka Capita'.

Not long ago with the assurance and conviction that ignorance alone can bring, we wrote a paragraph commenting adversly on the custom of the girls appearing on the streets on cold days with no other protection against the cold than that afforded by a thin silk or chiffon hose.

We take it all back, we just saw one pass with full length, heavy weight underwear the bottom of which was parked three inches above the shoe tops.

Three Words

There are three words, the sweetest words,
In all human speech,
More sweet than are all songs of birds
Or poets preach.
" Ilove you?"
Wrong by heck!
It is another, sweeter phrase,
"Enclosed find check."

Those who claim to know, state that the national income is increasing at the rate of two billion a year. From what we can gather from personal experience and limited inquiry the national outgo is increasing about three billion a year.

Much is being written about the saturation point of the automobile market. Saturation in this instance probably means the point when the last man puts everything in soak and buys a flivver.

A smartly dressed young man with a well fitted blue overcoat was noted by several when he passed under the electric light to have the print of a shoe near the vent.

Just how should this ad be interpreted: "Barber wanted for white trade, must be good lady barber—booze fighter need not apply."

With the announcements coming that long skirts will be here next year, two correspondence schools that sell courses to straighten bowed (in and out) legs have quit business.

I see where Mrs. Minnie Spurt, who is planning to shoot her husband this spring, is busy gathering proof of insanity in her family. Just now she is seeking an eye witness of the brain storm her grandfather had when his mules balked on a hill with a wagon load of corn. This, she feels, will establish hereditary insanity, as she already has testimony of the hired girl who saw her father's attack when the stove pipe collapsed and came down in pieces, just after he had worked four hours to get it up.

One thing I always like to see ,two 'skinners' trying to trade.

Democracy is a delusion—Republicanism is a snare.

It continues to look like Al Smith, although some Democrats are becoming frantic.

The 'solid south' will have more than oil to talk about in the coming campaign.

Let the people be fooled. The big guns know that neither oil, religion or prohibition or all three are an issue, but these three will do this time to fool the people.

If you have a sensible idea everyone jumps on it. If you have a fool idea everybody laughs. Therefore why be sensible?

Household Notes

A one-dish luncheon is becoming more and more popular with housewives as the simplicity and attractiveness of the arrangement is realized. Here is a dish which, with the addition of a green vegetable, would make a delicious meal. Put a layer of boiled rice in the bottom of a shallow baking dish. Parboil sausages fifteen minutes then arrange on bed of rice so they radiate from center like spokes of a wheel. Put a spoonful of crushed Hawaiian pineapple in the center of the dish and between the sausages. Bake in a moderate oven (350 F) for half an hour, then place under the broiler flame for a few minutes to brown the sausages. The pineapple will brown slightly, too, making a pretty and appetizing dish.

General utility man is the title that is given to the pineapple, for, like the general utility man in a stock company, it can double in any role. As a cocktail or vegetable, with meat, in a salad or a dessert, pineapple is always there. But that is not all, for it can often play the star part in a meal. For instance, in this salad, pineapple certainly stands in the limelight. Cut six slices of canned Hawaiian pineapple in halves. Pare a large cucumber and slice it. On a bed of lettuce arrange the pineapple and cucumber slices alternately. Serve with French dressing.

Whip is not an alluring word but when it has pineapple in front of it the situation is entirely different. And when the pineapple whip recipe is a variation from the standard one, who wouldn't want to hear about it? Beat three egg whites until stiff, and gradually add one-half cup sugar. Fold in one cup crushed and drained Hawaiian pineapple. Pour into a greased baking dish and bake in a slow oven 25 to 30 minutes or until puffed and slightly browned. Just before removing from the oven, dot with marshmallows and brown them.

Millions of Model T Fords are still in active service

FOR nearly twenty years, the Model T Ford led the motor industry and it still is used by more people than any other automobile. More than eight million Model T Fords are in active service today—an indication of their sturdy worth, reliability and economy.

Because of the tremendous investment which people have in these cars and because so many of them will be driven for two, three, and even five more years, the Ford Motor Company will continue to make replacement parts until, as Henry Ford himself says, "the last Model T is off the road."

For the Ford Motor Company has always believed that its full duty consists not only in making a good automobile at a low price, but also in keeping it running efficiently for you as long as possible at a minimum of expense.

No matter where you live, therefore, you can still buy Model T Ford parts with the same assurance as formerly, knowing that they will give you the kind of service you have a right to expect, and at the same time protect the money you have invested in your car.

All Ford replacement parts, as you may know, are made of the same materials and in the same way as those from which your car was originally assembled, and are low in price because of the established Ford policy.

So that you may get the greatest use from your Model T Ford over the longest period of time, we suggest that you take the car to the nearest Ford dealer and have him estimate on the cost of any replacement parts which may be necessary. You may find that a very small expenditure will maintain the value of your car and will be the means of giving you thousands of miles of additional service.
